This is to bring to your knowledge that we at Narayan School of law would like to organize a program in our department on the occasion of international women's day on 8th March 2021.

With this event we aim to make young law students aware of the nuances of discrimination and systematic micro aggressions faced by women today so that empathy for their situation permeates the legal institutions from the ground up which would ensure better reforms and fairer legislations in the future. The discussion would also entail talks on the most vulnerable strata of the society and how they can be included in the discussion surrounding sexual assault and abuse. It is also imperative to discuss on the agency endowed on the women in societies, specifically to our country as well as how they can be provided with more of such agency in their personal and professional spheres of life and what the government and legislative bodies can do to ensure them the same. The empowerment of women is of prime importance in today's world, and the students would therefore discuss on what such empowerment is, how a state mandate can effectively ensure it, and the power of law in traversing the path of ensuring such empowerment.

It would be an interesting dynamic to observe how law students can narrow their field of scope to such legislative effectiveness and the outcome they believe would be of such discussion in their journey as a lawyer in forging their ideas and idealism. It would be of much importance to the law students to incorporate the information and theoretical discourse provided by the panel into their everyday study of law and philosophy of jurisprudence behind cases concerned with sexual abuse. The panel would also be effective in stimulating such discourse on the current climate for women as well as a priori arguments on how such a climate can be aligned in favour of women.

The program will include a chart and pictorial representation by the students on problems surrounding women's life in society, for which students will be assessed and given certificates. In another event we are going to organise an open group discussion about issues plaguing the society including hygiene awareness and sanitation, presently for women and how can the position of women be changed in the society.
